A CONCURRENT RESOLUTION
STATING LEGISLATIVE FINDINGS AND SUPPORTING SPECIFIED INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION.

Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Idaho:

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that international education is a key cornerstone to Idaho's global competitiveness and international education is of vital importance to Idaho's economy by providing opportunities for transformational learning, citizenship and leadership, contributing to diversity both in and outside the classroom, enhancing both academic and cocurricular programs, and promoting cross-cultural understanding among its citizens; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that Idaho is committed to recruiting students from many parts of the world to study in our educational institutions. Between 2006 and 2007, 1,969 international students and their families studied and lived in Idaho, contributing $31.6 million in tuition, fees and expenses. Many international students are engaged in research that results in products and services that directly benefit Idaho's economy and improves the everyday lives of its citizens; and

WHEREAS, when international students return to their home countries and gain influential positions in companies and society, they are an important asset to Idaho. International alumni spread recognition and a positive image of Idaho and the United States in their home countries and they are also vital in developing networks and connections for Idaho businesses and higher education throughout the world; and

WHEREAS, at the kindergarten through grade 12 levels, international students bring diverse perspectives, provide opportunities for learning tolerance, and enrich their peers' social and political understanding of other countries and cultures; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that Idaho is committed to providing study abroad opportunities for its students. In 2006, Idaho Senator Larry Craig cosponsored U.S. Senate Resolution 308, proclaiming 2006 as the Year of Study Abroad. The world is full of pressing challenges, including hunger, poverty and disease; and

WHEREAS, Study Abroad is a springboard for students to become engaged in real world problems, helping them become better communicators and problem solvers, hone leadership skills and gain empathy for those who are suffering from economic hardship, famine or tyranny. Study Abroad helps transform students into globally informed citizens, unafraid to grapple with the tough questions and obstacles of tomorrow; and

WHEREAS, to bring multinational companies to Idaho and provide local companies with international expertise, Idaho's workforce must gain the global competency to address the needs of business; and

WHEREAS, the best method for our students to achieve global competency is through direct international experience integrated into their education; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that Idaho is committed to bringing international artists, performances, exhibitions, conferences, events and forums to its education institutions and communities. Idaho festivals, such as the Lionel Hampton International Jazz Festival, recently awarded the nation's highest honor, the National Medal of Arts, inspire our youth by offering clinics and workshops where they can learn from celebrated musicians and performers. International performances and exhibitions not only entertain us, they challenge Idahoans to rethink their conceptions about the world. International events and forums provide a platform to explore and generate open and honest debate on important topics such as global warming, the war on terrorism and genocide; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that Idaho is committed to internationalizing the curriculum at kindergarten through grade 12 schools, colleges and universities; and

WHEREAS, course offerings at Idaho education institutions must reflect the global aspect in every discipline. For instance, a computer produced in Idaho may have parts from Mexico, be marketed in Europe, and have product support from India. Research that used to be conducted in relative isolation is much more likely these days to be facilitated through collaborative efforts with scientific labs abroad; and

WHEREAS, in order to produce students able to compete successfully in a global marketplace, Idaho kindergarten through grade 12 schools, colleges and universities must prepare them for that experience; and

WHEREAS, Idahoans need to be conversant in other languages, learn how to effectively network with people from other countries, feel at ease working in Boise or in Coeur d'Alene as in Shanghai or Nairobi. Idaho educational curriculum needs to prepare Idahoans to be globally engaged citizens and leaders; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that Idaho is committed to expanding international trade. In 2006, Idaho exports exceeded $3.7 billion and was linked to nearly 10% of its workforce. Key markets for Idaho's goods included China, Canada, Singapore, the United Kingdom, Taiwan and Japan; and

WHEREAS, Idaho companies and higher education institutions are engaged in developing new products, technologies and innovative ways to globally market its products; and whereas, higher education institutions in Idaho provide foreign language, area studies and cross-cultural communication courses. They promote mutual understanding between Idahoans and people from other parts of the world and train business executives and personnel in successful strategies to compete in markets abroad; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that Idaho recognizes that international students and scholars contribute significantly to the cultural, artistic and social fabric of Idaho's educational institutions and communities; that international trade, supported through international education, is critical to Idaho's economy; that international exchange and study abroad promote transformational learning and global competency; that international festivals, events and forums sponsored by Idaho's educational institutions promote cultural awareness and appreciation of the arts, and provide an avenue for the important issues of our time to be examined and that the internationalization of curriculum at Idaho education institutions and schools is crucial to preparing students for an increasing interconnected world.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the members of the second regular session of the Fifty-ninth Idaho Legislature, the Senate and the House of Representatives concurring therein, that Idaho supports:

(1) Infusing courses with international topics, and across disciplines, to increase students' understanding of global issues and provide opportunities to become engaged in those issues;

(2) Developing more area studies courses, and in particular, courses that examine Islamic, Asian and Sub-Saharan African countries;

(3) Promoting the study of foreign languages, and in particular, develop and offer more courses in Arabic, Chinese, Japanese and other languages crucial to Idaho's economic growth;

(4) Providing opportunities for students in all majors to participate in programs to study abroad, volunteer abroad and participate in internships abroad to enrich their academic and professional training, gain new intercultural perspectives, hone their leadership and global competency skills and become engaged in real-world problems and issues;

(5) Recruiting more international students to Idaho campuses and schools so that more opportunities exist for Idaho natives and international students to interact effectively, gain intercultural skills and understanding, to share their views, perceptions and experiences, and to create a cadre of international business and political allies;

(6) Developing innovative international events, forums, conferences, exhibitions and festivals to showcase world artists and musicians, performances and works of art, and provide venues for Idahoans to explore global issues and learn about other cultures; and

(7) Encouraging kindergarten through grade 12 integration of materials, programs and partnerships that build on the Idaho Content Standard for Global Perspectives
